

DAVID KOVAC INTELLECTUAL VAUDEVILLIAN

AMUSING GRACE

David Kovac is a modern-day vaudevillian. He performs random acts of magic, preserves the orbits of objects in space (or more simply put: “juggling”), and banters nonsensical intellectualisms — all in a stand-up act which has been featured throughout Chicagoland.

“The act is built around a satirical look at the modern age as we attempt to simplify complexity,” explains Kovac. His audience is taken on a hilarious journey as they intake a barrage of verbiage, struggling — in a fun way — to catch their breath and keep up with the smart-talking, free-wheeling Kovac.

PRESTIGIOUS VENUES

David’s talents have been recognized by many Chicago area producers. The Chicago Department of Cultural Affairs selected him to appear at the opening celebration of Millennium Park. The Mayor’s office requested a return engagement to the stage to entertain for the U.S. Conference of Mayors. Emcee work? He’s done it. For two years he hosted at the Noble Fool Theatre in the Loop to excellent reviews. He’s also made frequent appearances at The Green Mill, Second City and Davenport. Visitors to Chicago have seen David performing at Chicago’s Navy Pier and on the luxury Lake Michigan cruiser “The Odyssey” for the past eight years.

GROWN-UP NONSENSE

Though he admits his after-dinner act is meaningless, audiences laugh themselves silly as he gives balloon animals a decidedly adult “twist.” In a highly original routine, he finds a selected playing card using his dapper necktie. And his nonsensical repartee, delivered non-stop while he performs
